MONTGOMERY COUNTY
PUBLIC SCHOOL
HONOR ROLL

Containing the Names of the Pupils and Students Who Were Neither Tardy Nor
Absent During the School Year 1911-12

Introductory Note.

A very great man once commanded that honor should be given to whomsoever honor is due. This man was both wise and good. He knew that every normal person desires and enjoys some kind of a reward for work well done, or deeds nobly performed. He knew also that the proper bestowal of honor in the form of public recognition is one of the easiest and most effective ways of encouraging well-doing.

The purpose of this little book is to award honor. It will exhibit the names of the pupils and teachers in Montgomery county, who by promptness, punctuality, and faithfulness during the school year of 1911-12 won membership in the County Superintendent's Honor Roll.

In recording these names, I am no less conscious of the amount of time and effort expended than am I of the degree of distinction achieved. It is rapidly becoming a matter of common knowledge that no genuine victory can be achieved without the expenditure of considerable time and effort. When carefully analyzed, success in any department of life is found to be about ninety per cent. hard work—either manual or mental.

Those whose names appear on the following pages have won more than membership in our Honor Roll. They have mounted those steps which lead to the highest and most abiding success. They have begun the acquisition of habits which are more precious than silver and gold, and more to be desired than all the things the world buys and sells. It gives me, therefore, exceeding pleasure to write these names in the ledger of my own memory, and to place them before the public.

There is one fact, however, in connection with the preparation of this list of names which brings a tinge of sadness to me. It is this. I am aware that had not accident, illness, or some unavoidable misfortune fallen upon them, the names of scores of pupils and a few teachers would have been added to the following list. These had it in their hearts to be just as prompt and faithful as those whose names do appear; and while I cannot record their names in this little book, I can assure them that their hopes, their efforts, and even their defeat will be neither barren nor unfruitful. The same habits of promptness, readiness, and faithfulness which constitute the greater reward falling to those whose names color the pages of this little book, took equal hold on those who lost the prize by no fault of their own.

And I dare to point out how the disappointment and the defeat which came to those who thus failed, may in the long run count to their advantage. If any one truth in physiological and medical circles is being emphasized today, it is that save in exceptional instances, sickness is preventable. In the days of our grandparents, all sickness elicited nothing but sympathy. In these days, most sickness elicits sympathy highly seasoned with condemnation. If we suffer from colds, fever, stomach disorder, nervous trouble, or any of the so-called contagious diseases, Science points the finger of scorn and condemnation toward us, our parents, our neighbors, our teacher, our family physician, or our public officials, and says with an authority which cannot be challenged successfully, "This might have been avoided." Our best medical schools are teaching the physicians of to-morrow that the art of prevention is infinitely better than the art of curing. A learned doctor said very recently that it would not be long until Science will cause all self-respecting people to experience a sense of shame upon having any of the ordinary ills of the past and present.

With these truths before us, have we not reason to hope that much of that which we have been calling unavoidable misfortune may be looked upon and treated as preventable hindrances? Is it too much for us to hope that those of us who suffered disappointment and defeat during the year that has just passed may be able to convert our seeming misfortunes into helpful experience, and to so guide and guard all our steps during the coming year, as to guarantee ourselves freedom from those ills and forces which hindered us last year?

With profound sympathy for those who tried and failed, and hearty congratulations to those who tried and failed not, I am with increasing esteem for the pupils and teachers of Montgomery County.

Otis F. Hall, Supt.
